

Gladiolus

Irrigation

Sufficient water is required for good growth of gladiolus. Number of irrigation depends upon the climate and type of soil. Usually, 1-2 irrigation a week are sufficient. Irrigation is provided immediately after the application of fertilizers and during the emergence of buds. Watering should be stopped at the time of ripening of corms.